

Questions you should always ask when choosing a non-medical in-home care agency:

1. Is the agency licensed with the State of your residence, Health Department, and Medicaid?
2. How long has the agency been in business?
3. Who are the owners of the agency? Are the owners involved?
4. What experience, training, and certificates does the agency require their employees to have?
5. Does the agency screen their potential employees and complete a criminal background check?
6. Does the agency drug test employees; physical or screening?
7. Are all of the employees insured and bonded? Do they use independent contractors?
8. How does the agency supervised and manage their staff? Do they have a nurse on staff?

9. Check to see if the agency sends a registered nurse to assess the client and the client's home before beginning service. If so, is that person a responsible for generating a care plan?
10. Does the agency provide care around the clock?
11. Does the agency answer calls 24 hours a day and can I talk to someone evenings and weekends?
12. Will the agency give you a copy of a care plan?
13. Is there a minimum number of hours required to employ one of their caregivers?
14. Have the agency provide you with a list of references.
15. Ask; what are the agency rates? Do the rates change depending on services and times needed?
